I have tried creating a logo css class to place the image in the header but that didn't work. I'm using bootstrap for this project. Can you give me an example of css that should be used so that the logo will be shown in the header? Thanks A. or A: With bootstrap your image can be placed on the left-most space in the header. The following image would be placed on the left-most spot: Q: Variadic Templates - When is a wrong type not allowed? In the following templated class, when I try to use any value not of type int, I get: error C2440: 'initializing' : cannot convert from 'int' to 'int *' Is there any way to correctly use a variadic template here, assuming what I actually want is to just define all the different types from a list of T? #include template struct Foo { static void Init() { (void)static_cast().value())>(0); (void)static_cast().value())>(0); (void)static_cast().value())>(0); (void)static_cast

DIY Horror HQ We're not kidding when we say that this is a DIY horror headquarters. A lot of the past projects have been terrifying to say the least. We're not sure what's going on here exactly. From the couch to the underwear dispenser and found furniture, we don't know what possessed the owners to go full 'haunted house' on us. There's something weird about this old hospital bed and this sofa...with its beard. The creepiest thing we see in this apartment is the photo of a pair of bloody red eyes peeking out of the bookshelf. Your voting Voting ends Tuesday, November 4 at 9:00pm.
